TO THE INDEPENDENT ELECTORS,
OF THE
TOWN AND COUNTY,
OF THE TOWN OF NOTTINGHAM.

Gentlemen,

TO be summoned to the sacred Trust of Legislating for a Great Kingdom, is the highest honour which can be conferred on Man ; and he is a Villain who abuses it. To this honour you have this morning invited me, and whatever be the Issue, my highest Gratitude ever will be due to the numerous Assembly which has thought me worthy of it. I love my COUNTRY, the pure principles of her CONSTITUTION, but above all, I love HONEST MEN, on whom the preservation of every thing that is valuable must depend.—You have an Opportunity of presenting a glorious example to your COUNTRY, and I firmly trust that you will act up to the generous spirit that now animates you.

OBLIGED to go back to Derby, I will return here with all expedition, and assuredly meet you before the commencement of the POLL.

It will be with you to act like HIGH-SPIRITED ENGLISHMEN, and be assured that no Terror shall ever repel ! no temptation ever seduce me from the duty of an UPRIGHT REPRESENTATIVE !

PETER CROMPTON.

Nottingham, May 24th, 1796.
